Forum's Problematic

The principle of any dialogue is founded on that utter and adequate conviction of perceiving the Other as an existential and cognitive evidence for the purpose of achieving communicative and informative conversational dimensions related to cognitive, philosophical and intellectual facts, which bridges between different interlocutors' understandings of the Other from linguistic and religious perspectives. This fusion of the already mentioned dimensions and conceptions linked to the Other reflects that existential and universal truth that figures in the Quran where the phrase “common terms” is mentioned in Surat Al-Imran. Allah says: {O people of the Book Come to common terms as between us and you, that we worship none but Allah} Al-Imran verse 64.

We may be exaggerating in our judgments and appreciations as we claim that this phrase “ common terms” would not lead to the desired objectives , given the opposing nature of the human existence. However, this could be possible by means of language (s) which, by means of its tight link to manifold religions that reflect spiritual, ideological ,philosophical , intellectual , social ,customary and other religious aspects , bridges the gap between human nature and religion. This could be seen in manifold religions such as Judaism, Christianity, and Islam . These interrelated and complex tights between religion, human nature and language constitute the premise of our forum. In other words, it aims at clarifying the existential relationship between the language in its absolute dimension and religion with its holistic features. In this way, the forum is but a hopeful futuristic attempt, which by fostering conditions for personal judgments and visualizations, aims at breeding cognitive ,philosophical, and intellectual perspectives in the broad spiky field of humanities, if we work together of course.

From this perspective, the forum will embrace manifold topics related to language and religion and which center around:

- Religion Axis :

- Divine nature of God in holy scriptures ,
- The religious text and the hermitic tradition,
- The religious text and the world.

- The Otherness axis:

- The otherness in the holy scriptures,
- The otherness in Quran,
- The dialogue about the Other torn between the religious text and human existence.

- Language Axis:

- Language and the existential and cognitive mystery ,
- Language and hermeneutical dimension between the West and the Arabs,
- Language and legitimacy of the open –mindedness of the dichotomy question / answer between the West and the Arabs.

- Dialogue Axis:

- Language and its dialogic and existential dimensions,
- The content of the heavenly message and its dialogic and linguistic dimensions,
